Surrounded by water and blessed with mild winters, Sidney is a recreation paradise. Whether golfing, sailing, yachting, kayaking, or paddle boarding, people who love the water are drawn to the beautiful Salish Sea and the stunning Gulf and San Juan Islands. Without a doubt, Sidney is a boater's delight!

With picnic and camping facilities, Sidney Spit is a gem enjoyed by locals and visitors throughout the summer. It offers excellent hiking trails and bird and wildlife watching too. The sandy beaches are quiet, immaculately clean, and a true get-away.

Mentioning bird watching, the area is on the migratory route for a wide variety of birds. The 143 hectare Shoal Harbour Migratory Bird Sanctuary is a few minutes from downtown Sidney and provides habitat for more than 2400 birds representing 51 species during the year. Other nearby sites include Roberts Bay, Island View Beach, Horth Hill and many others.

Cycling is another popular activity that attracts riders from near and far. With safe streets and well-marked bike paths, Sidney welcomes riders of all levels. The Lochside Trail and the YYJ airport path are popular destinations. For the adventurous, mountain bike trails are close by too.

Hiking and walking opportunities abound, not just in Sidney, but in nearby provincial parks, along the waterfront, the beaches, and in other scenic locations.

ART + CULTURE

People often wonder why so many artists, musicians, and highly skilled crafts people live in Sidney and on the Saanich Peninsula. Is it the beautiful environment, the laid-back lifestyle, or other factors that make the area such a haven for creative people? No one will ever know for sure, but the richness of the visual and performing arts is truly remarkable.

The ArtSea Community Arts Council is the heart of the arts community. With a mission to encourage public awareness and appreciation of the cultural life on the Peninsula, ArtSea offers and supports events throughout the year: the Spring and Fall Studio Tours, the Artisans Show, and the Sidney Fine Art Show are but three examples. The Gallery at Tulista Park is also home to rotating exhibits of local artists' dynamic work.

The Saanich Peninsula Arts and Crafts Society is another key arts organization. With almost 400 members, the Society's annual art show attracts visitors from far and wide.

The Mary Winspear Centre, a state of the art community centre, offers an extraordinary mix of cultural events throughout the year, showcasing music, dance, and theatre performers from around the world. The Centre also houses one of the most outstanding exhibits of First Nations and Canadian art from across Canada.

The Sidney waterfront offers a fascinating sculpture walk, displaying pieces selected from across North America. The Town also features four art galleries and an attractive historical museum.

FOOD + DRINK

With its relaxed West Coast ambiance, Sidney and the Saanich Peninsula are home to more than 50 restaurants and cafés. The focus is on all things local with a taste of the international too. The area offers a wide range of culinary delights aimed to please the most discerning palate.

SIDNEY'S HISTORICAL ROOTS

Thousands of years before European settlers arrived in 1860, the Coast Salish People lived a rich and varied life on the Saanich Peninsula, enjoying the many gifts of land and sea. Sadly, a series of smallpox epidemics prior to and after the settlers arrived decimated the local population.

Many of the early settlers were prospectors on their way to the Fraser River in search of gold. In 1892, land was designated as a town site to be called Sidney after an adjacent island.

The area grew rapidly and was quickly served by three railways and several ferries. Both brought local farmers and Victoria residents to Sidney and the railways stimulated a real estate boom. Although the railroads closed many years ago, Sidney still serves as a transportation hub with BC and Washington State ferries and Victoria International Airport all close at hand.

Before the 1920's, Sidney's economy was largely based on agriculture, food processing, and a few manufacturing operations. During this time, local pirates made good use of motorboats. The introduction of prohibition in the USA encouraged rum running, which led to a murder at sea and the execution of those found guilty.

Sidney played a key role in both World Wars. During WWI, a military camp served as a holding area for regiments before deployment. The airport was initially built for the military to provide training and home defense. More than 10,000 aircrew were trained there during WWII.

In 1945, regular commercial flights started. In 1953, Fairey Aviation developed a plane servicing operation, the only one between Alaska and San Francisco. Martin Mars water bombers were also built there. Airport lands are presently home to multiple manufacturing and service enterprises.

Today Sidney is largely a tourism and retirement destination. Its boutique shops, varied services, events and cultural assets help make Sidney the vibrant, friendly place it is—with a rich and interesting past.

MEETINGS + EVENTS

Sidney is a meeting planners dream. It offers multiple options for meetings and conferences of almost any size. Located next to the beautiful Salish Sea, Sidney venues have been shown to increase attendance, inspire participants and make event planners look like super stars. Mary Winspear Centre, the local conference features a 300 seat theatre, a 8100 sq. ft. hall, multiple breakout rooms and a large gallery space perfect for receptions. The Sidney Pier Hotel & Spa offers luxurious accommodation, specialized catering and meeting space. For more information on these venues and more visit exploresidney.ca.

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Sidney offers qualified, experienced professionals who stand ready to provide advice, guidance and unique services designed to meet or exceed your expectations. Sidney's wide range of health care services, for example, is well known in the Capital Region and features traditional medical practitioners such as doctors, dentists, optometrists and physical therapists, and a wide range of complementary practices such as naturopaths, acupuncturists, chiropractors, massage therapists, and counsellors.

Sidney spas offer a full range of services for relaxation and restoration of body, mind and soul. In addition, hair stylists and barbers provide top-notch personalized services, always geared to the unique needs of each client.

For legal, financial and other business needs, Sidney professionals also stand ready to serve. There are lawyers, accountants, notaries, financial planners and insurance brokers, each providing knowledgeable, current and reliable information to help you address some of life's most challenging issues.

Whether it's your health, wellness or personal business needs, you don't need to leave Sidney to find qualified, experienced and friendly professionals.
